The Model Husband.

On week days he walks out with his wife and is not afraid of a milliner's shop. He even has "change" when asked for it, and never alludes to it afterwards. He is not above carrying a large paper parcel, or even holding the baby on his lap, when in the cars. He runs on first to knock at the door when it is raining. He goes to bed first in cold weather to get it warm. He allows his mother-in-law to stop in the house several weeks at a time. He believes in hysterics, and is melted instantly with a tear, and never complains if butter "out-ranks" him at the table. He patches up a quarrel with a silk dress, and drives away the sulks with a trip to the Atlantic. He never flies out about his buttons, or brings home friends to supper. He buys his wife a sewing machine and hires a woman to run it. To save money, making and mending, he buys his clothes ready made, and never lets them smell of tobacco. He never invades the kitchen, nor opens the windows of the parlor when the sun shines, and is innocent of a latch key. He lets the family go to the sea shore every summer, whilst he remains at home with one knife and fork, sits in a brown Holland chair, sleeps on a sheetless bed, and has an aged contraband to wait on him. He goes down Saturday and comes up Monday, taking with him the clean linen and bringing back the dirty clothes. He pays the house-keeping money without a suspicion, and shuts his eyes to sundries. He is easy and affectionate, keeping the wedding anniversary punctually; never complaining if his dinner is not ready; making breakfast himself if no one is down; tending upon her when sick, and promising, if she should die, never to marry again.

SECRET SINS.—A man who indulges in sin privately, by degrees gets his forehead as hard as brass. The first time he sinned, the drops of sweat stood on his brow at the recollection of what he had done; the second time no hot sweat on his brow—only an agitation of the muscles; the third time there was the sly, sneaky look, but no agitation; the next time, he sinned a little further; and by degrees he became the bold blasphemer of his God, who exclaimed, "Who am I that I should fear Jehovah, and who is He that I should serve Him?" Men go from bad to worse. Launch your boat in the current—it must go where the current takes it. Put yourself in the whirlwind—you are but a straw in the wind; you must go which way the wind carries you—you cannot control yourself. The balloon can mount, but it cannot direct its course; it must go whichever way the wind blows. If you once mount into sin, there is no stopping. Take heed, if you would not become the worst of characters—take heed of the little sins, which, mounting one upon another, may at last heave you from the summit and destroy your soul forever.—There is a great danger in secret sins.

CAPTURE OF A STEEL BLOCKADE RUNNER.—A despatch to the New York Herald says: Boston, Oct. 17.—The British prize steamer Bat, from Halifax to Wilmington, was brought into port this afternoon in charge of a prize crew, having been captured on the 10th instant off Cape Fear by the United States steamer Montgomery. One man on the blockade runner was killed by a shell from the Montgomery during the chase. The Bat has no cargo, but has on board 48 bales of cotton from the steamer Quaker City, which vessel picked it up at sea. The Bat is a steel side wheel steamer of 325 tons.

Ringgold is between Tupper and Chatta-hooc, eight miles north of Tupper and twenty-three miles south of Chatta-hooc.

CAMDEN DAILY JOURNAL

THURSDAY MORNING OCT. 27

No news by telegraph this morning.

Lieutenant-General LONGSTREET has taken the field again and, in a sailing order, resumes command of his old corps.

The SHERMAN who lost his leg at Port Hudson is not the one confronting Hood. That infamous scoundrel still possesses his natural "trotters."

It is stated in Washington that Gov. BRADFORD has decided to throw out the soldiers' vote upon the new Constitution of Maryland, as, according to the existing State law, soldiers were not authorized to vote. This will knock the convention's work in the head, if it is as without the soldiers' vote the constitution is in a minority.

The City Council of Columbus, Ga., has passed a resolution providing that "any member of council who shall attend any of its meetings while in a state of intoxication, shall be fined fifty dollars for the first offence, and for the second shall be expelled." What has been the matter, or was this legislation necessary to provide against future spiritual manifestation?

GRAND CONCERT.—The "Lone Star Minstrels" propose giving their first entertainment at the Temperance Hall, this (Thursday) evening, for the benefit of the Wayside Hospital.

We have been assured that their performances—though comic—are chaste, and calculated to please the most fastidious. The cause for which this entertainment is given will certainly guarantee a full and appreciative audience.

REFUGEES IN CANADA.—The following order seems to have created great excitement among the refugees from Yankeeedom in Canada:

HEADQUARTERS, QUEBEC,
September 21, 1864.

Notice is hereby given to all persons from the Federal States of America who have taken refuge in Canada since the first of August, 1864, and are fit for the performance of military duty to report immediately to Captain H. Stanshope Wilkes, of Her Majesty's service, at his headquarters, Clinton House, Canada West, for enrollment into the military service of Her Majesty's Government.

All persons failing or refusing to comply with this order will be subject to summary arrest, fine and imprisonment.

Refugees and exiles seeking the protection of this Government must lend their aid to strengthen the Government that gives them protection.

By order
Southern refugees are said to be complying with the order, and Yankees are making for their homes. It should cause our authorities to reflect on their leniency towards foreigners in letting them go almost entirely unscathed, while every white male citizen is required to go to the front—exemption or no exemption—detail or no detail.

AN ESCAPED PRISONER CAUGHT.—On Saturday night one of the Yankee prisoners escaped from the jail, and made his way towards the western part of the city. He there encountered a negro, of whom he made a confident, and offered fifty dollars for the negro's assistance to ferry him over the Ashley. The negro willingly consented, but suggested to the Yankee, that while he would be absent making the necessary boat arrangements, he must consent to be locked up in a room to escape detection by the guard. Consenting to this, the negro went directly to his young "Massa," and informed him of the game he had bagged.—Massa Charley took his trusty double-barrelled gun, and was soon face to face with the escaped prisoner, who tried to resist at first, but soon became passive, venting his ire on the negro for betraying him. The negro enjoyed the scene hugely, and with his master escorted the prisoners to jail, where he is now safely lodged.—Mercury of Tuesday.

Cut out the following and paste it in your scrap book. It is worth a year's subscription to any reader of this paper:

The leaves of the elder, if strewn among corn or other grain, when it is put in the bin, will effectually preserve it from the ravages of the weevil. The juice will also kill bed bugs and maggots. Insects never touch elder bushes. The leaves of elder scattered over cabbages, cucumbers, squashes and other plants subject to the ravages of insects, effectually shields them. The plum and other fruits may be saved by placing on the branches and among them bunches of elder leaves.

New Plans—Possibly.

Lynchburg, it would appear, says the Examiner, is absolutely necessary to Grant, as without it he can make no way. The people of the North are growing restive and uneasy at his delay in securing Lynchburg, which is the sine qua non to the capture of Richmond.—New plans have come to light; which have been revealed to the New York Mercury by "secret occurrences," which go to show that the task of reducing the obstinate little town has been confided to—whom does the reader suspect? Why, no other than Sherman, with his army of Tennessee. Hear how the Mercury prates about this grand scheme. It should remember, however, that many a plan of men and mice all gangs aglee:

General Grant's army in front of Petersburg and Richmond will make another advance; Sheridan will move down upon Gordonsville and Sherman, with his victorious legions, will sweep brilliantly and successfully through Southwestern Virginia against Lynchburg.—These combinations exhibit a profound knowledge of the war on the part of Gen. Grant.

The Columbus Times state that deserters in Florida who came over to our side during the week, report that nearly all of the enemy have left Jacksonville and St. Johns, to reinforce Grant.

We have a report, says the Columbus Sun, that Grant has written to Washington that he shall have to let go his hold unless he is reinforced, and that he desired that Sherman might maintain his position in Atlanta with as small a force as possible, and send the remainder of his troops to Virginia.

REDEMPTION OF GEORGIA.—We think the people of Georgia may safely congratulate themselves upon the fact, that whatever the ulterior effects of General Hood's present movements may be in other respects, they secure to their State freedom from the presence of the enemy. Of course, we are ignorant of the purposes of General Hood. Whether they be to march into Tennessee and transfer the war to a new theatre, or to remain south of the Tennessee river, the result is still the same to Georgia. In either case his base of operations becomes such as to effectually force the enemy from our State. Whilst the brilliant movement of Hood has produced this result, and rescued us from the accursed fate that threatened us out a few weeks ago, we trust our people will not for a moment relax in their energies, but, on the contrary, that they will now put forth one mighty and united effort in order to make our redemption doubly sure. Tennessee and Kentucky are yet to be reclaimed ere we can rest in fixed security. In Gen. Hood's effort to relieve those down-trodden States, we have it in our power to greatly aid and strengthen him. Let us then join heart and hand in the noble cause, so that the day of deliverance to all may not be distant.—Mercury of Confederate.

TRIBUTE TO WOMAN.—The celebrated traveler Layard paid the following handsome tribute to woman:

I have observed that women in all countries are civil, obliging, tender and human. I never addressed myself to them decently and friendly without getting a friendly answer. With men it has been otherwise. In wandering over the barrens of hospitable Denmark and through honest Sweden and frozen Lapland, rude and churlish Finland, unprincipled Russia, and the wide-spread regions of the wandering Tartar; if hungry, dry, wet, cold, or sick, the women have been friendly; and, to add to this virtue, (so worthy the appellation of benevolence,) those actions have been performed in so free and kind a manner, that if I was dry I drank the sweetest draught; and, if hungry, ate the coarsest morsel with double relish.

A pretty sharp retort is that recently made by a young, pretty girl at Oshkosh, Wisconsin, who attended a ball dressed in short skirts and pants. She was the only one present in the mode. The other ladies were shocked, very much. They regarded her short skirts as immodest; but she quietly remarked, that if they would pull up their dresses about their necks, as they ought to be, their skirts would be as short as hers.

A recent African traveler says: "A cannibal is not necessarily ferocious. He eats his fellow-creatures, not because he hates them, but because he loves them."

PRINTERS' GLUE.—As an instance of the enormous prices printers have to pay in these war times for materials indispensable to the carrying on of their business, we will mention that a friend bought for us, in Savannah, a few days ago, twenty pounds of glue, for which he paid the round sum of five hundred dollars. The expenses on the same, by Express to this place, is sixteen dollars—making a total cost of five hundred and sixteen dollars for twenty pounds of glue, which, in ordinary good times, would not have cost more than eight dollars! We will add that everything else we purchase for our office costs us in the same proportion, to say nothing of the high prices of living and other expenses incidental to the carrying on of our business. How can any one have the heart to grumble at our charges after this plain statement of facts!—Floridian Journal.

The Charlottesville Chronicle contains an article, showing the great superiority of the Nothing the means and materials of war, and contrasting its immense resources with our slender means. Yet, in spite of these advantages, we have sustained ourselves in a manner to excite the admiration of the world. It closes thus:

No grander military exhibition has ever been witnessed. No more brilliant struggle adorns the romance of history. We stand today a conspicuous mark in the long succession of the human drama. Sink or swim—live or die; Grecian triumph or Carthaginian doom; Batavian victory or Samaritan ruin; Prussian glory or Circassian exile—our record is complete, we stand before the world, and will live with posterity, as an example of gallantry that will awaken admiration wherever the bloody Confederate story is breathed among men.

A curious circumstance occurred recently in Brussels, namely, the prosecution of a photographer by a gentleman for exhibiting his photograph at the shop door. He said that, owing to the circumstance and the ugliness of the copy of nature, he had lost a good chance of making a rich marriage.

A country editor having received two gold dollars in advance for his paper, says that he still allows his children to play with other children as usual.
